CHINESE TIE-UP COMPLETE IN SHAMEEN; NO END IN SIGHT

Women And Children May Have To Be Taken To Hongkong

WARSHIPS HELP

Volunteers Are Looking After All Public Services

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Shameen, July 19.—There is no settlement yet of the Shameen strike. Negotiations are proceeding slowly.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 17.—A telegram from Shameen reports that all the Chinese employees on Shameen had left the island. The strikers did not as a group approach the British and French authorities with any demand or make any notification of their intention to strike. At first the strikers were only employees of the British and French, but the others were forced by agitators and all had to join the movement.

The strikers stationed pickets at the two bridges leading to Shameen and are threatening that anyone who attempts to enter Shameen will be shot. Chinese purveyors of foodstuffs near Shameen have been compelled to cease taking supplies to the island. The only Chinese in Shameen on the 16th instant were the Municipal police and they were being threatened and it was believed that they would shortly leave.

On the 15th instant the British and French authorities formed three commissions to deal with the question of food supplies, transportation and cooking. A large amount of foodstuffs was due to land at Shameen from the British steamer Lianghsan on the 18th instant. Volunteers were being enrolled to attend to transportation. The Hotel Victoria was doing a large business as a restaurant.

The British and French men-of-war were giving valuable help in transportation work. For the moment no great inconvenience was being felt by residents of Shameen but if the strike continued for any length of time, it was expected that the women and children would be taken to Hongkong.

Another telegram, also sent on July 16, says that all Chinese including clerks, servants and police struck work at 6 p.m. on June 15. Volunteer militia had been organized to assist the local authorities in maintaining order. It was impossible to estimate the probable duration of the strike, but it might last several weeks. The waterworks was being operated by volunteers. The electric light from the city was not interrupted. The mails were being delivered and food supplies were arriving from Hongkong.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 18.—The police at Shameen on the evening of July 18 joined in the strike, according to further foreign official telegrams. At the request of the British authorities Japanese volunteers are patroling a section of the island. The number of strikers is now estimated at 1,200. The union of sampan men has proclaimed a sympathetic strike, and other Chinese industries are expected to do likewise. Since July 16 all business at Shameen has ceased.

Religious Trouble Continues In India

(Reuter's Service)

Delhi, July 20.—Although the communal tension is slowly easing, the disturbed conditions between the Mohammedans and the Hindus have not yet subsided. Sporadic acts of individual violence and the propagation of mischievous rumors serve to embitter the feeling of the excited populace.

The authorities have taken firm measures. The shops yesterday evening began to re-open, but during the night a Hindu was stabbed to death and another brutally assaulted, as a consequence of which the majority of shops closed again.

Gets Life Sentence For Killing Doctor

MRS. MARGARET WILLIS

NOTED AMERICAN LAWYERS GUESTS OF LONDON BAR

Secretary Hughes, Justice Taft And Choate Among Visitors

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 19.—A notable gathering of American lawyers arrived in London today as the guests of the English Bar. The Law Society and the Canadian Bar Association party comprises 2,000 Americans and 550 Canadians, including their wives. The Americans are headed by Secretary of State Hughes and include ex-Ambassador Choate, Chief Justice Taft and Solicitor-General Montgomery Beck.

A fine program of hospitality has been arranged, among which are a Royal Garden Party at Buckingham Palace and a banquet, luncheons and receptions at the Mansion House, the Oxford, Cambridge and London Universities and the Houses of Parliament.

Wine And Tobacco Bank Officials Are Named By Cabinet

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 18.—The official report of the Cabinet meeting this morning says the Ministry of Finance brought forward the proposal that the registration of Mr. Chang Shou-ling, Special Commissioner charged with organisation of the Wine and Tobacco Bank, should be accepted and that Mr. Wang Yu-chih, Tupan of the Wine and Tobacco Administration, should act as organiser of the bank concurrently. This was approved and it was resolved to ask the President to issue a mandate to that effect.

It was also resolved to relieve of his post Mr. Li Kan-tien, Superintendent to Customs at Husien, and to appoint in his place Mr. Koo Chu-yuan.

Tientsin Again Menaced By Flood; River West Of City Is At 22 Foot Level

Chinese Authorities Aggravate Situation By Refusal To Allow Dykes To Be Cut; Volunteer Corps Patrols Embankments And Concessions

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 18.—General Wang Chen-ping, who has been in Peking for a few days making a report to the Government concerning the floods at Tientsin and other ports of Chihli province, returned to Tientsin this morning.

The Governor of the Metropolitan Area, the Commandant of the Peking Garrison and the Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police have arranged to send three cars of foodstuffs to Fenghsan the Western Tombs and the Western suburbs for the immediate relief of flood sufferers.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 18.—A number of the staff of the British Legation, who was at Kalgan when the flood occurred, speaks in high terms of the measures taken by the Chinese there to cope with the emergency. The flood rose suddenly at about 4 a.m. and soon after daylight soldiers and police armed with rifles and bayonets were posted at intervals throughout the stricken area, with orders to prevent looting by shooting if necessary. People whose homes had been destroyed and who were unable to find a shelter and food elsewhere were quickly rounded up and placed in enclosures near the railway station, men on one side of the line and women and children on the other. These refugees passed through the railway gates in entering the enclosures and each person received two loaves of bread on entering. The Tutung and the Magistrate personally supervised the work of reconstruction which was carried out quickly and efficiently.

It was estimated that a thousand people were drowned. Two hundred bodies were recovered lower down the river where dams formed barricades against the flood. A Chinese Hotel and a Russian boarding house were swept clean away and the occupants drowned. At a police station with a tower the flood waters began to rise quickly and eleven of the twelve occupants hurried into the tower. The force of the water, however, caused the tower to fall and that eleven men were lost, the one who was unable to reach the tower only being saved.

People who were injured were taken to the Mission Hospital where they received quick attention.

(Reuter's Service)

Peking, July 18.—An emergency meeting of the executive committee of the China International Famine Relief Commission, held yesterday afternoon, decided to organise a national campaign throughout China in order to raise funds for the relief of the flood-stricken areas, which include Kwangtung, Fukien, Hunan, Kiangsi and Chihli. Urgent telegrams have been sent to the affected districts and the Committee is gathering information as to the number of persons in need of relief and the condition of the crop.

It is estimated by Mr. C. J. Todd, the Commission's Engineer, that in the Peking-Tientsin area alone there are something like 100,000 square miles under water.

The Commission is endeavoring to get the co-operation of the Chinese Red Cross Society and kindred organisations and it is hoped that the headquarters of the national "drive" for funds will be established in the Chinese Red Cross Building in Peking.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, July 21.—The flood menace to Tientsin has returned owing to the fact that the flood waters west of Tientsin have now registered 22 feet. The danger is aggravated by the refusal of the Chinese authorities to cut the dyke of the Peiyunho so as to allow the flood waters to the sea north and south of Tientsin.

The local volunteer corps has been called out for tonight to patrol the concessions and dykes.

PERSIA TO TAKE STEPS TO PUNISH CONSUL'S SLAYER

Legation At Washington Expresses Deep Regret Over Tragedy

(Reuter's Service)

Teheran, July 20.—The shooting of the American Consul was the culmination of recent anti-foreign and particularly anti-British agitation conducted in the native press and elsewhere which the Government was unable to check owing to lack of proper press law.

(Reuter's Service)

Teheran, July 20.—Martial law has been proclaimed. Several suspects have been arrested.

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, July 20.—The Persian Government has instructed its Legation here to convey to the American Government its deep regret at the killing of the United States Consul. It adds that the Persian Government will take all possible steps to punish the guilty.

(Reuter's Service)

Teheran, July 21.—The murder of Mr. Imberie, the American Consul, occurred while he was driving with an American friend, Mr. Seymour, in the neighbourhood of a fountain reverenced by masses of Persians daily.

The fountain was then surrounded by worshippers. The Americans alighted from their carriage a short distance off and the Consul held up his camera to photograph the scene. The crowd objected and surged towards the Americans, who hastily entered the carriage and drove off.

The crowd followed and shouted imprecations, accusing the Americans of being "Bahais", a non-Mohammedan religious sect, and of poisoning the fountain. The uproar spread and the carriage was overtaken by a motorcyclist and forced to stop.

Soldiers joined the crowd, who dragged out the Americans from the carriage. Mr. Imbrie defended himself with his stick until he was hit on the head with a sword. He attempted to rise but was knocked down by a huge stone which broke his jaw. Mr. Seymour was freely struck. They were then dragged to the Cossack parade ground.

A police detachment managed to get the injured men into a motor-car and conveyed them to the police hospital. The crowd followed and broke into the building, smashing the doors and windows, and again assaulted the Consul, fatally.

Some hopes are entertained for Mr. Seymour's recovery.

Men And Women In News Of The Day

Below: SADI LECOINTE & NICKY ARNSTEIN

The bachelor Prince of Wales, celebrating his 30th birthday in London, is reported to have told his intimate friends he did not intend to marry until he was 35. "Nicky" Arnstein, serving a term in the Federal Prison at Leavenworth, Kan., for implication in a huge bond theft in New York, has been returned to jail in New York City, and it is said he intends to turn State's evidence and involve many other persons. Sadi Lecointe, famous French flyer, competing for the Beaumont Cup at 500 kilometres in a 600 horsepower Nieuport airplane, made 300 miles an hour, the fastest time ever made in the air. Madeleine Dever, former Follies dancer, named as co-respondent in the New York divorce suit of Mrs. Philip M. Shaw against her wealthy husband, has now sued Shaw for $100,000, alleging breach of promise to marry, spurning his offer of marriage made in court.

Trusty Shot Gun Wins Battle Of Haining Road

What might have been estimated as a second Sydney Street affair—referring to the time, some years ago, when the Minister of War called out the Scots Guards and artillery to round up a band of barricaded London desperadoes—lent a thrill to the usual drab round of existence in West Hongkew last Saturday night.

The S.V.C. and the Marines were not called out, but practically every other branch of defense, including the Fire Department, was yanked into the emergency—and suffered casualties—while rifle and pistol shots racked the evening calm and crowds stampeded, until a good wing shot in the police force brought the lone beseiged criminal down from a roof top with a dose of pellets from the West Hongkew Station's shot gun.

THE BATTLE BEGINS

The battle began reging shortly after 7:30 p.m. when an excited Chinese galloped into the West Hongkew station and reported that an armed robber was ensconced on the roof of a house on Haining Road just across the street. Uniformed men and detectives dashed across the way and, sure enough, there on the superstructure of 2771-A Haining Road loomed in the dusk a menacing figure. The police invited it to come down. The answer came in the form of a barrage of half-bricks and roof tiles. A Chinese girl intercepted part of the reply, but was not much injured. It is also stated by standers that the shadowy person on the roof fired a couple of shots. At any rate, the police opened up with their pistols, whereupon the dim target bounded gracefully from the roof of 2771-A to that of an adjoining domicile and disappeared from view.

An urgent call for reserves was turned in and every available man in the district was summoned into action, a thick cordon being thrown around the entire block. Lookouts finally spied the fugitive this time gracing the rooftree of 1189 Boone Road. Once more the crash of musketry, and again the devastating shower of bricks and fragments of roofing material. Detective Inspector Prince and P. C. Myerscough were among the mained this time, while various onlookers drew a share of casualties. By this time the Fire Department, hastily ordered out, was on the scene and an escape was shot up to the roof, while a large-nozzled hose was hooked up and preparations made to administer the water cure. The first fireman to attain the altitude necessary for action was greeted with an accurate volley of sharp edged tile and retired in some disorder. The second did likewise. And similar discomfort occurred to all succeeding climbers. The miscreant's aim remained good despite the distracting circumstance of the police artillery.

THE TRUSTY SHOT-GUN

Things looked black, and as the evening waned, blacker. It was then that P. C. Malone, the trusty station fowling piece under his arm, stepped into the breach. The besieged one, evidently beginning to find the corner a trifle warm, started a strategic retirement to another roof, the load of No. 6s, originally intended for some stray wonk, caught him amidships and elsewhere, and the battle of Haining Road was over.

Questioned at the station, the winged one refused to talk. His name is said to be Wong Tongyuin and it is now conjectured that he is a housebreaker by profession and was following his trade at 44 Haining Road when he was alarmed and the flight across the roofs began. The housebreaking charge was laid against him at the Mixed Court yesterday and will be heard when the effects of the bird-shot have worn off.

JAPANESE SHIP SINKS, CREW OF 57, SAVE ONE, LOST

Lone Survivor Lived Week On Raft Without Food Or Water

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 21.—The N.Y.K. steamer Matsuyama Maru, which left Keelung on July 9, sunk on July 11 west of Goto Islands with all hands, numbering 57, except one stroke, who was picked up by the trawler Chihaya Maru.

The Matsuyama Maru, which was an old vessel, began to sink after leaving Keelung with sugar and general cargo. Efforts to pump the water out were ineffective and finally she was abandoned on the night of July 11, according to the story of the survivor, who existed on a raft for a week without food or water.

REPARATIONS ISSUE IS NEAR SOLUTION AT LAST; AGREEMENT IS NEAR ON THREE PRINCIPAL POINTS

Commission, Aided By An American Representative, To Be Final Authority In Establishment Of A Default; Allies To Determine Nature Of Sanctions; Loan Service To Have Prior Claim On German Revenues

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 19.—Secretary of State Hughes, interviewed on his arrival in London, said that American sentiment was very strongly behind the Dawes Report as it now stood. "We believe that prompt execution of it", he declared, "is of the greatest consequence".

The American Bar Association will proceed to France for a few days as guests of the French Bar.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 19.—The general impression of the negotiations in London is favorable. The Franco-Belgian plan for the withdrawal of pledges, which will have the effect of restoring the economic unity of the Reich, provides for two different phases. Germany would vote the laws and create the organisations for execution and control as provided for in the Dawes report: bankers would furnish a guarantee for the 800,000,000 gold mark loan: and the Franco-Belgian authorities would raise the customs barrier.

The second phase would be as follows:—Germany would finally institute a bank for the issue of gold notes for 16,000,000,000 gold marks: the Franco-Belgian railway regie would be cancelled in three months; the concession of special railway lines to the Allies would be considered: the experts' plan would be considered in force and the first annual payment by Germany would begin from the date of the formation of the German railway company.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 20.—The Inter-Allied Conference yesterday continued to make remarkable satisfactory progress. The first and third committees have completed their tasks in general agreement and the second committee expects to conclude on Monday after which the plenary sitting will be held as early as possible.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 20.—The Second Committee of the Inter-Allied Conference has appointed two sub-committees, the first sub-committee, dealing with the economic integrity of Germany and the Ruhr, will meet today and there is a good prospect of reaching an agreement by tomorrow. The second sub-committee, dealing with the railway question, has concluded its sitting, but has not reached a definite conclusion and will merely make a report.

A plenary meeting of the Conference is expected as soon as the first sub-committee has reported. It is understood that the important question of getting Germany's consent has not been mentioned up to the present.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 21.—The progress of the Allied Conference is officially revealed by an interview with M. Theunis, the Belgian Premier, in which he declared: "I believe that we are now in sight of our goal and that the problem or reparations is about to receive the solution that has been sought for so long."

The general lines of agreement of the First Committee are (1) that after the establishment of a default, in which connection the Reparations Commission with the addition of an American shall be the deciding authority, the nature of the sanctions shall be determined by the Allies after consultation with the American Agent-General and representatives of bondholders; (2) that the service of the loan shall enjoy prior claim on the German revenues; and (3) that apart from the foregoing provisions the rights of the signatory Governments under the Peace Treaty are reserved.

An important matter requiring settlement is the question of getting Germany's consent.

Reuter's Berlin correspondent says that the newspapers, including Herr Stresemann's Die Zeit, profess the greatest anxiety at what they describe as the change of the basic provisions of the Treaty.

On the other hand Reuter's Paris correspondent report that the French press, with the exception of the extremists, is in general delighted with the compromise.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 21.—Interviewed by the London correspondent of a French paper, M. Herriot, the French Premier, said that the work of the Allied Conference was far from being ended but important results had already been reached. Never had inter-Allied negotiations been carried out in a more cordial atmosphere and never had more sincere and mutual comprehension facilitated discussions. M. Herriot paid a tribute to the British delegates, who, he said, were realising more and more France's moral and political situation.

JAIL TERMS GIVEN FOR INTIMIDATION OF RICSHA PULLERS

Score Are Sentenced For Activities During Recent Strike

Nearly a score of Chinese including one ricsha foreman, appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday and were sentenced on charges of intimidating coolies and in some instances damaging vehicles in connection with the recent ricsha strike.

Two of the accused—who were arrested in various police districts—were sentenced to four months' imprisonment each, fifteen received sentences of three months each, one drew a month and another two weeks.

It was stated in nearly every case that the offenders after threatening the working coolies, either let the air out of the tires of their rickshas or started to break up the craft. Most of the accused were arrested last Saturday and it was said yesterday that the trouble is believed to be over.

Canton Demands Educational Use For Boxer Fund

(Reuter's Service)

Canton, July 19.—A manifesto has just been issued by the Kuomintang regarding the Boxer Indemnity. It says that the talk of railway building and river conservancy is mere camouflage to deceive the people. The fund returned should be devoted to educational purposes for the benefit of the entire people. "Chinese education is hanging on a thread and is almost on the point of extinction." A commission should be formed to study ways to apply the fund. Another commission should have powers to prevent misappropriation by militarists and reactionaries.

Sao Paulo Rebels In Dire Situation

(Reuter's American Service)

Buenos Aires, July 19.—Frontier reports state that the situation of the rebels at Sao Paulo is desperate. They have utterly failed to secure the support of other States. The Government forces, who outnumber them by five to one, are endeavoring to coax the rebels from the town so as to avoid damaging it.

LONDON 'TIMES' APPREHENSIVE OF PEKING POLITICS

Journal Says Chinese Are Provoking Japan By Intensifying Boycott

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 19.—With reference to recent Sino-Russian diplomacy, the Times points out that the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps in Peking is likely to hold other than honorific significance and asks whether the Powers can acquiesce in the devolution of such responsible and delicate functions upon M. Karakhan, who, the paper asserts, is openly exciting Chinese hostility toward the Treaty Powers.

The Times describes the recent events as "familiar Bolshevist methods."

In conclusion, the journal declares that the Chinese are provoking Japan—although the unrepentant author of the Twenty-One Demands has just become Prime Minister—by intensifying the boycott of Japanese trade. They have requested the Powers to discuss the increase of Customs duties promised at Washington without a pretence of having fulfilled the conditions on which the promise was made. The answer has disappointed them and the conference with the Bolshevist in which the application of the agreement is to be worked out in detail, seems likely to disappoint them again.

Two Near Death As The Result Of Coolie's Jealousy

A man and a woman were severely wounded early yesterday morning as a result, it is said, of the jealous frenzy of a coolie named Tsang Kyung-phoo.

The attack on the man and woman was made in a cotton mill at Sinza Road, where the assassin was taken into custody. The male victim was hacked about the head, hands and body with a chopper and the woman is suffering from ten knife wounds. The two were taken to Shantung Road Hospital, where it was said that their condition is grave. The assailant was charged at the Mixed Court yesterday, the case being remanded two weeks.

Judgment Given In Rental Action

Judgment for rent due and an order for surrender of the premises were given by Judge Peter Grain in the British Court yesterday when Mr. Ezra Shahmoon brought an action against Mr. A. Ross in respect of premises at 40 Tatung Road. The claim was for $100 rent due, $50 mesne profits and release of the premises.

Mr. J. E. Salmon, for plaintiff, told the Court that defendant was a tenant of the plaintiff at a rental of $50 per month and had been given notice to quit at the end of the fifth Chinese moon, July 2, the rent not having been paid for the fourth or fifth moons. Defendant said he was not in a position to pay at the moment. He had been a tenant for seven years. Mr. Salmon intimated that his client was willing to allow defendant to remain in the house until the end of the sixth moon if the rent were paid and the Court gave judgment for plaintiff for $100 rent for the fourth and fifth moons, $50 rent for the sixth moon and $25 costs and ordered defendant to vacate the house by July 31.

Death Valley R'way To Be Abandoned

(Reuter's American Service)

Los Angeles, June 28.—In altitude and earnings the Death Valley Railroad is the lowest in the United States, according to a report filed here with the State Railroad Commission, seeking permission to abandon the line because, the company declares, "it isn't worth the distinction of being designated a common carrier." In the request for permission to abandon the line as a common carrier it was noted that the earnings jumped from $1.32 to to $23.78 in 1923. Company officials explained that the increase was "unnatural" and was on account of motion picture companies using the desert as locations.

FOREIGN CUSTOMS A LA MISTER MEI PUZZLE MME. LING

Verily the ways of the foreigner are a complete bewilderment, and a menace to the peace and property of the Settlement—according to Mme. Ling Siau-oo. Mme. Ling is insistent upon the point, and in substantiation thereof unreeled a poignantly grievous tale in the Mixed Court yesterday.

The lady's woful deposition was substantially as follows: about a week ago Mih Zoong-yiu—who stood in the dock to answer a larceny charge—came to the Ling residence, introduced himself as an old friend of Mr. Ling and engaged the housewife in conversation. During the course of this he mentioned casually that it was in his power to supply Mme. Ling with quantities of extremely latherly foreign soap, free gratis for nothing and merely as a token of his esteem for the Lings. The proposition, Mme. Ling admitted, held a lure. She confessed as much to Mih. Mih thereupon suggested that Mme. Ling accompany him to the foreign establishment where he was employed and secure an armful of the cleanser. He advised that as extra insurance toward the accomplishment of their aim, Mme. Ling bring along a child in arms—this being an unfailing appeal where foreign sympathies were concerned. Mme. Ling thought it might be done and went next door and borrowed Wong Tha-bing, puling but intelligent—as it proved—scion of the Wong household.

Thus equipped Mih, Mme. Ling and Wong fils started for the foreign home aforementioned. Halfway Mih halted, smote his brow and, gazing at his companion's hand with something akin to horror, declared that more strategy must be employed. His foreign employers, he stated, were Catholics. Puzzled by the pause and Mei's announcement, Mme. Ling inquired what this strange indictment had to do with the acquisition of soap. Much, said Mei. His employers would not tolerate anyone wearing jewelry in their demesne, and if anyone were caught there displaying such a resplendent jewelled ring or such a scintillant pair of earrings as those of Mme. Ling, no telling what catastrophe might ensue—certainly there would be no soap. Mme. Ling immediately removed the offending trappery and shoved it in her pocket. Mih shook his head. No use, said he, they might search her and, finding the stuff, invoke a swift and flaming retribution. But hold! He had an inspiration! Why not entrust the gauds to the small boy, whom they could leave outside the house and who would never be suspected.

Mme. Ling saw the point of the argument and into the sleeve of the diminutive Wong went the earrings and rink.

Arriving near the address specified, Mei deposited the child at the mouth of an alleyway and proceeded with his lady companion to the front yard of an imposing residence.

"Wait here," said he, "and I will go around to the kitchen door and make sure that all is well."

Mme. Ling waited, and waited, and waited some more, but Mei did not reappear. Subsequently she found the weeping infant at the mouth of the alleyway—but no jewelry.

"The man came and took the pretties from me," the precocious youth told the Mixed Court Magistrate yesterday, "and then got into a ricsha and went away."

And Mei, who was seen and tackled by Mme. Ling on the street day before yesterday, was ordered to the local Bastille for a four months' period.

Kalgan Flood Is Worst In 50 Years

(China Press Correspondence)

Kalgan, July 15.—Early on Sunday morning, the 13th. inst., the river here in Kalgan overflowed its banks. There had been very much rain in the last few days, which had caused the river to rise several times, and done a lot of damage; but never in the last 50 or more years has such destruction been wrought by the river in a few hours. The ancient stone bridge, the only means of communication over the river, was broken down by the force of the water. On the east side, the river swept away its dikes, and made a wide passage for itself through the city. It was there that most of the damage was done. Large stretches, formerly thickly inhabited, are laid waste, with little more than a few walls standing. Brick and stone houses, not to mention the usual mud houses, have been swept away completely, although a few have left their floors behind them. In others places the houses themselves are left standing, but are half-filled with mud that the river brought down and deposited there.

It is impossible just now to estimate the exact number of lives lost. The Chinese say that 3,000 or more people from Kalgan and its vicinity have been either drowned or killed by the falling houses. The damage is reckoned as exceeding a million dollars.

It is pitiable to see the large numbers of homeless people, who have escaped with little other than the clothes they wear. In one place a tailor had nothing left but the body of his dead wife on a heap of ruins. Many dug in the mud where their former homes had been, looking for anything that could be saved. As the city was already too full before, there are very many who can not find places to live, and must camp in the open. The authorities and several private parties have started relief work, largely by giving out free food to those who need.

The telegraph and telephone lines are all down. The railway is at present impassable. The railroad station is covered with mud, which lies a foot or more deep over the rails. Other breaks in the line are also reported.

We hope that the city authorities and the merchants will now decide to have the river properly restrained and diked, and to have a bigger and better bridge built.

Perfumes the Breath

Open Safety Pin Is Taken from Lung.

Maybe little Helen Laws, of Johnson City, Tenn., began practicing at the early age of nine months to be a sword swallower, starting with a light diet of safety pins, wide open. She bungled the first job and the safety pin was just entering her right lung when a physician found it by means of the X-ray, watched it with a laryngoscope and pulled it out with a long pair of tweezers. Now Helen is back at the smiling stage, as this photograph shows.

Mixed Court Orders Arrest Of Chinese Who Hung Up Thief

The not uncommon Chinese practise of invoking summary forms of personal justice in the case of offenders caught in the act or suspected of thefts or other lapses is out of favor at the Mixed Court.

Yesterday one Tsung Vung-yih appeared before Assessor Martin and Magistrate Zau, charged with the larceny of a number of tools which were being used by employes of the Shanghai Waterworks Co. in work at the new American Club. Detective Sergeant Tinkler told the Court that, on information from a foreigner, he went to the club building and found the accused rivetted to a bar with strips of iron. The accused admitted the theft of the tools and took the police to the place where they had been disposed of. The witness had come to court to protest to the treatment meted out to the accused and asked that the Chinese responsible be reprimanded. The club building is just across the street from Central police station and the accused should have been handed over to the police. If he had done this sort of thing himself he would have found himself in the British Court.

The Assessor emphatically agreed. The men responsible, he stated, should be placed under arrest immediately and a full investigation made. "This is not the first instance of a criminal being found and treated in this manner," he said. "This state of affairs cannot be tolerated."

The message goes on to say that the garden of this house and the land nearby are four and a half feet deep in water. While conditions at Paomachang are not quite so bad, nevertheless Wednesday night's rain wrought havoc amongst the walls and mud buildings and a new and wellbuilt Chinese house in which a foreign family is residing was found to have no boundary walls left, and the only upright object greeting their eyes was a pair of gate-posts.

The first trip of the passenger aeroplane from Peking to Peitaiho, or rather the first attempt for this season, was not a success. The plane was removed ignominiously from Tientsin back to the aerodrome in Peking. The machine flew well from Peking to Tientsin, but experienced a little difficulty in landing, with the result that slight damage was sustained. It was thought advisable to dismantle the machine and take it back to Peking for repairs. We understand that in the future these passenger planes will be piloted by a foreigner. The inauguration of the summer aerial service between Peking and Peitaiho, via Tientsin, has been postponed and the sale of air-mail stamps at the Post Office in Tientsin and Peitaiho is accordingly suspended.

A curious story which is going round diplomatic circles in London now credits the ex-Kaiser with a wish to see the Wembley Exhibition! More, it appears that Wilhelm the other day invited a personal friend with a good deal of behind-the-scenes influence in official London to see if a visit could not be arranged. At any rate, a call upon the ingenious Mr. Willie Clarkson seems indicated in the first place, if the visit does indeed come off, in order to guard against regrettable incidents.

It is said on fairly reliable authority that two of the railway tunnels between Hankow Pass and Chinglungchiao have fallen in and passage of trains is now impossible. This constitutes a more serious obstruction to the reorganisation of railway traffic than the flooding of the track, as it will take considerable time to rebuild these tunnels. If it is indeed true that these tunnels have given way, it shows that the water must have undermined the hills through which these tunnels were cut, for they were built at great expense of a particularly prepared Belgianbrick and were considered very strong.

The former Russian Legation compound, concludes the report, might be converted into a park.

Chinese Official Is Suspicious Of Globe Trotters

Showchow, Anhwei, July 16.—The official here was rather excited by the arrival of two queer looking foreigners. They could not speak Chinese and the official was disturbed for two reasons. He feared they would spread socialism and he thought from their gestures that they wanted to go to Liu An Chou, which is at present in the hands of the Boxer bandits.

Therefore they all came to call at the Presbyterian mission and we had it out in broken English, more broken German and many gestures. These two men were none others than Korokoff and Johannsen who are walking around the world and have already been reported from various cities in China. Korokoff is a Tartar and Johannsen is a Latin from Riga. They are 36 and 38 respectively.

On Oct. 16th, 1922 they started from Harbin and have visited Tientsin, Peking, Shanghai, thence direct cross country to Yunnanfu, in Yunnan province. In this province Mr. Korokoff contracted malaria and was sick for eight months. From Yunnan they went to Canton Changsha, Hankow, back to Shanghai. From Shanghai they walked up the river to Anhwei Province to Luchowfu and thence North to Showchow. Their itinerary as planned is as follows through Anhwei and Shansi to Tiyuanfu, Kaigan, Tibet, Calcutta, Bombay, Muscat, Mecca, Jerusalem, Athens, Constantinople, Vienna, Paris, London, Brussells, Dublin, U. S. A., Canada, Alaska, Amer, Habarovsk and back to their starting point, Harbin. They are doing this all on foot where possible and say that in their first two years they have covered 21,000 kilometers.

Their story is apparently genuine and they have signatures from Consuls, Chinese officials, and missionaries from all the places they have visited. They dont appear to have much money. They sell their photographs to pay their expenses, and although they do not ask for money a good many people give them something.

They met the bandits in Kiang Si who handled them roughly and wounded Mr. Korokoff in the throat.

They look like strong men but a bit tired after being on the road for two years.

BOXERS IN LIU CHO FU

Liu Cho Fu has been in the hands of the bandits for some days. These bandits are known as the Ta Tao Hwei (Big Knife Society) or boxers. Unlike the Boxers of 1900 they are reported to be well behaved. It is hard to find out what their motive is. Apparently it is not anti-foreign, or plunder. They are reported to pay for what they get or take. One report is that they intend to drive out Ma Tuchun. A soldier who came to the clinic to get something to set his heart at rest after fighting with them gives the following account of them. Their leader is a priest 200 years old and very wise. He writes some magic words on a paper and the soldiers eat these characters, and then they are bullet proof. A wave of the fan wards off the bullet (this report is current). The soldiers have engaged them twice in battle and have been routed both times. The bandits are 1,000 strong and the soldiers twice that number. At one place the bandits chased the soldiers into a river where 100 were drowned. This soldier thinks that the boxers could have beaten them had the bandits had only 200 men. Thus they have a great reputation as fighters. The neighboring cities have large numbers of soldiers.

Americans Win Olympic Tennis And Swimming Finals; Records Broken

States' Representatives Sweep The Boards In Aquatic Events; Richards Defeats Cochet, French Survivor, In Deciding Tennis Match; Miss Wills Also Wins

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 19.—The Olympic lawn tennis and swimming finals, held today, were a series of American victories. They carried off the two tennis finals and swept the board in the swimming events.

In the semi-finals of the Mixed Doubles Richards and Mrs. Jessup (America) beat Timmer and Miss Bouman (Holland) 6-3, 6-0. Williams and Mrs. Wightman (America) beat Gilbert and Miss McKane (Britain) 2-6, 8-6, 6-1.

In the singles final Richards (America) beat Cochet (France) 6-4, 6-4, 5-8, 4-6, 6-3. Richards had to produce all he knew in order to overwhelm Cochet, who was very tenacious. Both were brilliant but Richards ran away at the finish.

In the other singles final Miss Wills (America) beat Mlle Vlasto (France) 6-2, 6-2. Miss Wills outplayed her opponent, though the latter was very game.

Miss McKane secured third place, beating Mme Golding (France) 5-7, 6-3, 6-0 in the play-off between the beaten semi-finalists.

The following are the swimming results:

100-metres free-style final: Miss Lackie, Miss Wehselan, Miss Ederle (All America). Time. 1 min 12 2-5 sec.

100-metres back-stroke final: Miss Bauer (America), Miss Harding (Britain), Miss Riggin (America). Time. 1 min 23 1-5 secs., a world's record.

200-metres final: Weismuller, Duke Kahanamoku, Sam Kahanamoku (All America). Time. 59 sec, an Olympic record.

Arne Bork (Sweden) was fourth.

High Fancy Diving, final: Withe, Fall, Pinkston (All America).

Men's 800-metres relay: America, Australia, Sweden, Japan, Britain. Time. 9 mins 53 2-5 secs, a world's record.

Ladies' High Plain Diving, final: Miss Smith (America), Miss Becker (America), Miss Topel (Sweden).

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 19.—In the Olympic lawn-tennis ladies' doubles final, Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman (America) beat Miss McKane and Mrs. Covell (Great Britain), 7-5, 8-6.

In the men's semi-finals, Hunter and Richards (America) beat Borotra and Lacoste (France), 6-2, 6-3, 0-6, 5-7, 6-3.

Brugnon and Cochet (France) beat Condon and Richardson (South Africa), 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 19.—In the semi-final of the Olympic 100-metres swim (back-stroke) the respective winners, the Americans, Miss Bauer and Miss Riggin both beat the world's record. Miss Bauer did the distance in 1 min. 24 secs. and Miss Riggin in 1 min. 29-1/5 secs.

GALLOPERS LOSE AGAINST SAILORS, BEAT JAPANESE

Double Header Sunday Productive Of Good And Bad Play

The Gallopers won one game and lost another in the double header Sunday. Against the team from the s.s. Argonne they were able to collect anything except the eggs, the sailors being but no better. The final score was to 0. Shanghai should have won this one, but neglected opportunities on the base paths were not taken advantage of. Claire, who pitched for the locals, held the opposition to two blows, while his mates were collecting eight.

South Africans Play Middlesex

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, July 19.—Over 3,000 spectators were present at Lord's for the opening of the match between Middlesex and the South Africans. The weather was fine and cool and the wicket fast.

Middlesex won the toss. They were all out at 6.20 for 328 runs. Hearne made 85, Stevens 81, Dales 51 and Lee 47. The morning cricket was very slow, but later it became brighter. Blanckenberg took 5 wickets for 79. Stumps were drawn at the conclusion of the innings.

The score in the Gentlemen's 2nd innings in the Gentlemen v. Players match at Lord's was 153.

TROOPS GO SOUTH FROM HSUCHOW; CHASING BANDITS?

(China Press Correspondence)

Hsuchowfu, Ku., July 20.—For several days past troops have been withdrawing from this section and moving southward. Bandit supression in Anhwei is supposed to be their mission.

The Defense Commissioner has also left for Nanking. The people here hope he is returning, as he has been very successful in putting down bandits.

The roads now are not as safe as they have been and small bands of robbers are operating quite near the city. However, with the growth of the kaoliang, this is the open season for bandits.

The long drought has been broken by heavy rains, but they came too late to save the first planting of beans and this great staple crop will not be up to the mark. Replanting has been resorted to in many places.

The Presbyterian Mission here has recently erected a number of new buildings and opened a new compound. These buildings are three new foreign residences, a large annex to the Men's Hospital—which doubles the capacity of the original plant a new church in the east suburb with a seating capacity of 500, and a very attractive three-storey building for the Girls' Schools High School. This building will be used exclusively for class room and administration purposes.

The Lung Hai railroad is pushing steadily eastward. A party recently made the trip from Hsuchowfu to Haichow in 12 hours. A gap of about 30 miles can now be covered by motor car; owing to the roads constructed by General Pei.

Six Bandits Pay Death Penalty In Shantung Village

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Laichow, Shantung, July 14.—Few places in China have been more free from banditry and violence than this, but a gruesome sight was presented a few days ago when the heads of three bandits were brought into the city.

It seems that eleven men renowned for violent deeds came into a village near the boundary between Pingtu and Yie counties. They demanded food and drink and while this was being prepared for them word was given out to the villagers who surrounded the men and these being out of ammunition were promptly captured. Six of the eleven men paid the penalty of their evil with their lives. Three heads were sent into Pingtu city and three into Laichow and the other five men were put in prison here in Laichow where they are awaiting some form of trial.

CENTENARY OF MISSION HYMN IS CELEBRATED

From Greenland's Icy Mountains Sung By Massed Choir

Savannah, Ga.— The centenary of "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" and two other hymns composed and first sung in Savannah 100 years ago was celebrated here recently by a special memorial service in the Independent Presbyterian Church. It was at this church that Lowell Mason, who wrote the hymns, acted as organist from 1812 to 1827. He founded the Boston Academy of Music, now extinct, in 1833.

The other two hymns composed by Mr. Mason are "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and "Safely Through Another Week," both well known but possibly a little less famous than "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." The words to the latter were written by the Rev. Reginald Heber, later Bishop of Calcutta, on May 29, 1819. When they reached Savannah they attracted the attention of a Savannah woman, who persuaded Lowell Mason to write the music which in the last 100 years has been heard all over the world. The refrain was written and first sung by the missionary society of the Independent Presbyterian Church in 1824.

Lowell Mason was born in Medfield, Mass., in 1792. When he came to Savannah, he took a position as clerk in a local bank, but at the same time formed a connection with the church that lasted for 15 years. He composed the three hymns mentioned with the aid of the church organ and they were sung first in the same church. After leaving Savannah, he became president of the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston, where he helped to form the Academy of Music. He also became internationally known as a leader of large choruses.

The three hymns were sung by a massed choir made up of singers from most of the other churches in the city. A special address outlining the work of Lowell Mason was delivered by Dr. Neal Anderson, pastor of the Independent Presbyterian Church. He said that at the time "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" was composed there was comparatively little enthusiasm for mission work. The hymn, said Dr. Anderson, "sounded a clarion call to missions throughout the world." He remarked that Lowell Mason's three hymns were known in every land and had been translated into almost every known language.

Germans Find New Species Of Crab

(Reuter's Service)

Hamburg, June 13.—Riding as stowaways all the way from China to Germany, a brood of crabs known to the scientist as "eriocheir," has settled down in the River Elbe and is enriching this stream by a hitherto unknown species of fauna. The crabs fastened themselves to the bottoms of ships plying between Hamburg and China, in the opinion of German zoologists, and are here beginning to multiply. Fifteen specimens have thus far been discovered.

The crab in question is characterised by long hair on the shears. A group of fishermen caught several of these queer-looking animals in their nets and took them to the State Zoological Institute, where they were identified as a type found only in Chinese waters. German scientists are delighted over the find.

Winnipeg's Golden Jubilee Celebrated With Floats

Winnipeg, Ca., June 13.—About the time when Napoleon was carrying 500,000 men through the snows of Russia, a Scottish nobleman of some eccentricity conceived the idea of planting a colony of his countrymen in the heart of the wilderness then comprising the Canadian northwest. In 1812 Lord Selkirk's agent, Miles McDonald with a party of settlers from Scotland landed on the shore of James Bay, and eventually founded a colony where Winnipeg now stands. On June 18, Winnipeg celebrates its golden jubilee as a city, and business activities will be suspended while pageants depict the early history and the progress of the city.

Fifteen hundred floats have been prepared now to show citizens what the city has lived through in the last 50 years. The water barrel wagon will depict how citizens got their water in the old days, and next in line will come the float showing the modern waterworks system. An old fire ladder with a hook and ladder brigade will precede some of the present highly specialised equipment. Each civic department will have floats illustrating its work except the tax department, which claims no changes in its method of operation.

June 18 is also the anniversary of the surrender of Rupert's Land to the crown. For 200 years the Hudson's Bay company was the supreme ruler of the Canadian northwest, but on June 18, 1869, it deeded over to the Dominion of Canada "all that portion of land draining into Hudson Bay" an event which was celebrated in Winnipeg at the time by the lighting of a huge bonfire and the raising of the flag on a 70-foot pole.

A feature of the celebration will be an old-timers banquet for which the Dominion Government has sent buffalo meat.

When Winnipeg was incorporated as a city the only means of land communication with the outer world was by Red River cart overland to St. Paul. No regular stage route was established; mail came once a week. There was no bank, no post-office, no lawyer, one church, one little newspaper, one policeman and about 20 buildings. The only currency in existence was the Hudson's Bay Company notes for £5, £1, 5s. and 1s. The owner of an acre of land on which the Canadian Pacific Railroad freight sheds now stand—at present-day valuation worth more than $1,000,000—offered it for a spaniel dog—and was refused.

Today Winnipeg has a population of 250,000. Twenty-two main lines of railway run into the city and the business done on these lines has necessitated the construction of the second biggest railway yard in the world. Where in 1874 real property was assessed at $1,500,000, now property in the city bears an assessed valuation of more than $256,000,000.

The greatest progress of all in the last half-century has been the development in grain production which has made Winipeg the biggest grain center of the world. In 1876, 412 sacks of wheat were sold to a foreign buyer in Winnipeg for $835.71. Including the 400,000,000 bushels of wheat raised in the west annually, the field crops are now worth approximately $1,500,000,000 yearly.

Opium Smuggling Persists In Shansi Despite All Efforts To Suppress It

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 17.—In view of the forthcoming conference of the League of Nations on opium, the International Anti-Opium Association is endeavoring to obtain statements and opinions on the object of opium in China from a large number of the High Officials and Leaders. The Association hopes later on to publish these in pamphlet form, but for the present the following letter received from Governor Yen of Shansi is worthy of early publicity:

"Shansi Governor's office,

"Shansi, July 10.—The International Anti-Opium Association, Peking.

"Sir: I am much impressed by your efforts on behalf of the anti-opium campaign and find it impossible to fully express my grateful appreciation. As I am Governor for the Shansi Province only and thereby restricted by my professional rights, I am not capable of commenting on, or investigating the cause of opium recrudescence throughout the whole country of China. My statement therefore applies to Shansi alone, which I know best. Shansi has been a most miserable victim of opium, and even now, although opium cultivation has been stamped out for several years, the conditions are bad, owing to the numerous addicts and the amount of smuggling which it is almost impossible to suppress. This smuggling from neighboring provinces continues although thousands of culprits have been put in jail.

"An even more pernicious evil is that of morphia pills, the manufacture of which morphia is so extensive in foreign lands. None is produced in China. The people use these pills instead of opium and the ease with which they can be carried and smuggled into Shansi makes it almost impossible to prevent, however strict the inspection. In the campaign for opium suppression these morphia pills are a great hindrance.

"As opium is the curse of this country and ruins the health of the people, I am determined and ready to give my whole strength to bring about the total suppression. At first I gave my attention to the enforcement of the law against opium, and every year there are about 20,000 culprits arrested, but this is only a temporary measure, which does very little good for the addicts. I am strongly of the opinion that a more fundamental measure should be devised, for unless the people are stirred by human and moral feelings suppression cannot be completed by the mere enforcement of law. To this end I educate my people by teaching them that opium smoking is a disease which ought to be cured, and induce them to make a strong determination to cure themselves without the employment of the law. I also instruct the smugglers that smuggling is a bad practice, and pardon them for the first offence. If caught again they are severely punished. Based on this policy I make a thorough investigation of the numbers of smokers and smugglers, and hold all my officials responsible for reforming them.

"During recent years I have established a system of village reform. Each village appoints a "head man" and every 25 families an "overseer," and every five families, a "head neighbor." These are responsible for the behavior and instruction of the people and those obstinate to them are punished by law. Since this system was established nine-tenths of the opium evil has been stamped out. I have every reason to believe that total suppression of opium in Shansi is within reach, and is only delayed by the cultivation and smuggling from other provinces. I submit this brief report, hoping you will always assist me by suggesting further methods of improvement.

"Yours sincerely,

"(Signed) YEN HSI SHAN."

Italy Asks U. S. To Explain 'Arbitrary Arrest' In New York

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, July 20.—The Italian Embassy has asked the State Department to explain the "arbitrary arrest" of the commander and seven officers of an Italian steamer on charges of smuggling narcotics. The officers were released after a night in jail. The Embassy alleges that the Federal agents showed excessive zeal.

Between the depredations of highjackers who board rum-running craft and remove cargoes at the point of pistols and the increased efficiency of the Prohibition agents reinforced by coast-guards equipped with speedy motorboats, the rumrunners' outlook is not promising. The Department of Justice, in statements, declares that the Government is preparing to take vigorous steps to control the situation by forfeiture of vessels engaged in the business and by prosecution of all persons connected with them.

Canada, Angry At Slight By Home Government, Still Is At War With The Turks

Not Having Been Invited To Participate In Lausanne Conference, Dominion Refuses To Ratify The Peace

BY JOHN BALDERSTON

London, June 15.—Canada is still at war with Turkey. Great Britain made peace with Turkey by the Treaty of Lausanne, which the British Parliament has ratified. Nothing less than the united diplomatic front of the British Empire has been shattered by the dispute between the Governments of London and Ottawa, of which an expurgated version has just been issued as a British White Paper.

The row has no great importance in itself. It is unlikely that Turks and Canadians will exchange shots when they meet, or that the hostilities which technically exist will be more fruitful of bloodshed than the present war between Russia and the Town of Berwick-on-Tweed, on the border between England and Scotland.

STILL AT WAR

Berwick-on-Tweed, claimed in ancient times by both English and Scotch, was granted autonomy as a compromise, and as a free state joined the Crimean War as an ally of Great Britain. But Berwick was forgotten when peace was made and the town's declaration of war still stands unrepealed.

But the unity of diplomatic front among the British Commonwealth of Nations is of extreme importance in the empire and the world, and the realisation that it no longer exists is causing great disquiet.

The present position as between Canada and Great Britain over the Turkish peace leaves the problem of interimperial diplomacy in a hopeless muddle. Such vexed questions as the proposed Canadian Minister at Washington or the appointment of diplomatic agents by the Irish Free State are easy of solution compared with the tangle that arises when a group of nations makes war and peace either in common or separately and are unable to agree on common action when it comes to ending a war, although they fight by each other's side in complete harmony.

Canada's bombshell for the Foreign Office here was contained in a despatch from Ottawa dated March 25 last, first published today, in which the Canadian Government states that: "Not having been invited to send a representative to the Lausanne Conference and not having participated in the proceedings, either directly or indirectly, and not having been for this reason a signatory to the treaty on behalf of Canada," the Government does not feel able to recommend the Lausanne Treaty or the Straits Convention for the approval of Parliament. And, the Canadian Government continues, without the approval of Parliament Canada's Ministers are not warranted in signifying concurrence in the ratification of the treaty and convention."

CLEAR-CUT ISSUE

Canada thus disavows the Lausanne Treaty. The Paris Treaty with Germany was signed by Canada and the other dominions; it made peace between Germany and the empire; but Canada now says that the peace with Turkey is not a peace between the Turks and the empire but between Turkey and Great Britain. There has never been a clear-cut issue containing more momentous possibilities for future trouble in the relations between the various self-governing British nations in recent history than is thus brought to focus.

The events that have led up to this quarrel are complicated. All the dominions were represented on a British Empire delegation at the Paris Conference; but the treaty of Sevres with Turkey became waste paper owing to the defeat of the Greeks two years ago, and when it came to the crisis at Chanak in the autumn of 1922 Lord Curzon hastened to Paris to persuade Poincare not to abandon a small British force on the Straits to be cut to pieces by the Turks. Poincare drove a hard bargain in return for promises of contingent support. He compelled Curzon to agree to throw over the Christians in Thrace and hand Thrace back to Turkey.

PROTESTS UNHEEDED

This deal, which is explained, I understand, in later despatches from the Foreign Office to Canada and the other Dominion Governments which are suppressed in the White Book, led Lord Curzon, then Foreign Minister, to realise that the dominions would not assent to the peace which as British Foreign Minister he had pledged himself to make. Soon afterward the Foreign Office notified the Dominion Governments that by arrangements made with France and Italy each power would be represented at the Lausanne Conference by two delegates only. For Great Britain, or as the English contend, the British Empire, the two named were Lord Curzon himself and the British High Commissioner at Constantinople, Sir Horace Rumbold.

It was taken for granted here that these two delegates represented the Empire. Canada's protests were unheeded; there is reason to believe they were not even brought up in the Cabinet, but were hidden in the files of the Foreign Office. The publication of the White Book today is a partial concession to the demands in Ottawa for publicity, but those despatches are suppressed in which the Home Government here urges upon the dominions intrigues of the French as their excuse for making concessions to the Turks, which the dominions' statesmen, the Australian even more than the Canadian, would never have granted had they been at Lausanne.

QUESTION OF PRINCIPLE

Involved in all this is, of course, an important question of principle, which has been posed above. But behind these thorny points of constitutional practice probably lies of feeling on the part of Australians and Canadians that they were tricked by Lord Curzon.

The upshot of it all will have to be, sooner or later, a definite agreement between the dominions and Great Britain as to their joint, or several, war and treaty-making powers.

Britain's Oldest Banking House Loses Its Identity

Nell Gwyn, Oliver Cromwell, Pepys, Charles II. And Titus Oates Among The Clients Of Child's, In Existence 300 Years.

Recent announcement that the old English banking firm of Child & Co. is, in accordance with the terms of its late senior partner, the eigth Earl of Jersey, to be absorbed in Messrs. Glyn Mills & Co. recalls an almost forgotten commercial romance, second in interest perhaps only to that of the British East India Company. For Child's is one of the oldest private banks in the world. It was the first banking house proper in succession to the trade of goldsmith, which originally conducted what little "banking business" there was to be done. There is a record of its existence 300 years ago, and in all probability it is even older than that.

Child's has an almost unequaled collection of famous autographs in its old ledgers. Charles II., Nell Gwyn, Oliver Cromwell, William III. and Mary, two other Queens of England, "the Castlemaine," a number of Charles's ducal "natural sons," Samuel Pepys, Walpole, the poet Dryden, Titus Oates of notorious memory, and many another were clients of the bank. Indeed, in 1765, when the bank made the first of a series of loans to the Duke of Bridgewater to enable him to finish his famous canal, begun at his own expense, and so successful a business achievement that its traffic dues had paid off the loans and other expenses within a very few years of its completion, we are informed that Child's was "the principal banking house in the metropolis, as it is the oldest; and most of the aristocratic families kept their accounts there."

Today the venerable business occupies modern and uninteresting premises, in no particular style of architecture, at 1 Fleet Street. But the site is practically that of the old Child's, to which customers addressed their checks as to "Mr. Alderman Child and Partner, Goldsmiths, at ye sign of ye Marygold, next dore to Temple Bar" * * * or "next dore to ye Devill Taverne in Fleet Street" or even better in full, "At sign of St. Dunstan pulling ye Devill by ye Nose." Familiarly, the public house was "Olde Devill Taverne."

There was a time when checks came addressed to "The Worshipful, the Lord Mayor and Company at Temple Bar." That was in 1732, when the second Sir Francis Child was Lord Mayor of London, and a step forward from the days when the first Francis Child was addressed as "A goole smith, att Temple Bar, in London."

BEGAN AT TAVERN

The exact site of the original premises was "next dore" to, and indeed in the actual Temple Bar itself. It began as a business house in what had been the "Marygold Tavern in Fleet Street." In olden days it was customary for tradesmen to adopt signs, which they hung out into the street and left behind them when they moved to other premises. Thus a particular "sign" might have no relation to the trade or calling of successive occupants. So with the Child Bank. It came into being at the sign of the "Marygold" and it kept the sign of the "Marygold." When finally its premises were rebuilt, the Marygold still remained. It is the crest of the bank today, and appears in the water mark of the Child checks. In 1764, when outside signs were abolished, the original board itself was let into the wall inside the banking premises. In the new building the device, or "token," appears in the masonry, but the old sign has been put away. It bore the "marygold and the sun," and the motto "Ainsi Mon Ame."

The old Marygold Tavern appears to have been of a riotous character. In 1619 there was issued a summons for Richard Crompton, "keeping an ordinary at the sign of the Marygold in Fleet Street," "for disturbing the quiet of John Clarke, being next neighbor, late in the night from time to time, by ill disorder." Exactly when Mr. Crompton gave place to the more sedate business of "goole smith" one cannot say, as there is no record. But in 1666 a patent was granted by the Goldsmiths' Company to Francis Child's grandfather — William Wheeler, "son of the late Mr. William Wheeler, goldsmith," to continue that business at the sign of the Marygold. Apparently it had been established there some time.

FORCED TO MOVE

In an old lease, dated 1676, Robert Blanchard rented the same premises, he having succeeded the Wheelers, and at his death in 1681 the first Francis Child renewed the tenure. Incomplete details indicate that Child also bought or rented parts of the adjoining "Sugar Loaf" and "Devill" taverns. The Child Bank was also tenant, direct from the Chamber of London, of the rooms above the arch of Temple Bar itself. In 1874 the dangerous subsidence of the bar forced the bank to move, after having occupied the premises for 204 years.

In 1707, when the whole of the Sugar Loaf Tavern was acquired by Child's, the cost of the necessary rebuilding was merely £350. But in 1787, when what remained of the Devill Tavern was bought in, the bank had to pay £2,800 for virtually the site alone. A row of houses, afterward known as "Child's Place," was built upon it. Among the relics preserved in the bank is the board rules (drawn up by Jonson himself) of the "tribe of Ben," the club of which Ben Jonson was the despotic monarch. It had its headquarters in the old Devill public house.

It is interesting to know that Nell Gwyn died in debt to Child's Bank to the extent of $6,900. The obligation, principal and interest, was assumed by her executors. That was in 1687. Two years later, in 1689, occurred one of the great adventures of Child's. Somehow, there arose a rumor of a run to be made on the bank, which would threaten its security. The matter was probably due to some underhand business rival, but the fact remained that depositors were alarmed. Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough (then Lady Churchill) heard of the rumor and its probable effect, and collecting all the gold one could from her friends, drove with it in her coach to the sign of the Marygold, and gave it to the partners. The incident was commemorated by Hogarth, who drew two cartoons, one of Lady Churchill arriving in her coach, post haste, to act as savior, the other depicting her in the bank behind a procession of porters bearing bags of gold.

FIRST PASS-BOOK

It is believed that Child's issued the first "pass book" in 1715 upon a client's request. Before that time it was customary for clients, upon withdrawing or depositing money, to examine their own ledger at the bank, in company with one of the partners. After the entry in question they would write "This account is correct," sign it, and so, as a rule, would the partner. The first person to demand a pass book was a woman, Lady Carteret, who wrote:

"Mr. Child I desire you will send ye money I called abt t'other morning in 50 pound bills as far as 300lb. & ye other hundred in 5 twenty pound bills. Ye person I thought of sending to examine ye account is sick. I should be glad of a Book with an account of all that you recd. upon this article."

Another document is a letter from the Duke of Leeds, directing Messrs. Child, his bankers, to invest £4,000 in the stock of the Bank of England, founded in 1694. Later on, the Bank of England dealt a blow to private banking houses by obtaining a monopoly of the privilege of issuing bank notes.

The connection of the Earls of Jersey, the last of whom made the will which signs Child's death warrant as an individual entity, with the famous banking house is indirectly the result of a series of romantic events.

A RUNAWAY MARRIAGE

In 1763 the head of the firm was Robert Child, who had two daughters. The younger eloped with the Earl of Westmorland, her father having refused his consent to their union. The story is told that the young Earl in conversation asked Mr. Child one day what he would do were he in love with a young lady whose father would not accept him as a son-in-law. "Why, run away with her," replied the banker, laughing.

Westmorland acted on his advice It is difficult to say whether this embittered the father, or the fact that he nearly caught the young couple before they reached the border, and probably would have done so had not the Earl, in desperation, shot the leader of Child's team of post horses from the back of his own chaise. The fact remains that the runaways reached Gretna Green, were married, and never were forgiven by Robert Child. He died late in the same year, 1782, leaving the whole of his fortune to his other daughter, Lady Sarah Fane. She, in 1804, married for the second time George Villiers, Earl of Jersey.

In 1812 the Jerseys assumed the surname of Child in addition to that of Villiers, in order to perpetuate it in the business. During the years after 1814 the partners were constantly changing, except for the Countess of Jersey, who took a most active interest in the business until her death, in 1867. She had been for sixty-one years the head of the bank. Afterward the Earl of Jersey, her husband, nominally carried on the firm, though his son was actually the head. In turn, this young man was succeeded by his own son.

It seems a pity that such an old and honorable name should pass into oblivion or be remembered only as "Messrs. Glyn Mills & Co.—Child's Branch," as it is henceforth to be designated. Perhaps the £3,000,000 which represents the present deposits at Child's is not worth more acknowledgment beside the thirty million or so of Glyn's, but in a country of tradition like England one would have thought the "sign of the Marygold" deserved its niche among famous names as long as banking, the outcome of the goldsmith's trade, continued to exist in its present form.

HENGCHOW HIT SEVERELY BY FLOOD WATERS

Great Property Damage Suffered In Siang River Valley

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Kuling, July 16.—The Siang River valley, from Yungchow on down to Changsha and beyond, has recently suffered the highest and most devastating flood in history, so far as known to the present inhabitants.

In Hengchow the flood began Sunday evening June 29, and reached its height about midnight of Tuesday July 1. It exceeded by at least two feet the flood of 1906, which was the highest on record. Six out of the seven city gates were inundated and 22 out of the 24 city precincts were partly or wholly under water.

Property losses were enormous —especially to the poorer Chinese structures of mud, mud brick, or hard brick stuck together with mud and lime. Hundreds and probably thousands of houses, shops and halls are down. The loss of life was low compared to property damage, but probably ran into the hundreds.

Losses to mission property were considerable. Walls are down about the C.I.M. property which lies within the city far from the river front.

Of the Presbyterian properties, two foreign residences were submerged to the depth of 3½ to 4½ ft. on their main floors. About 200 ft. of brick wall is down about the residence of W.W. Highberger. The walls and supporting pillars of the Kwang Teh School are badly cracked. The south gate church, which had 10 ft. 6 in. of water on its floor, is so badly damaged that it is being torn down completely and 150 ft. brick wall 12 ft. high is down beside it. The hospital suffered no serious damage though the water rose 3½ ft. in its dispensary and drug room. Many refugees who had taken refuge in the dispensary chapel because it was high and roomy, had to move out on Monday night and there was over 3 ft. of water on the floor next morning.

Rice crops which had already suffered very severely from the prolonged heavy rains, were badly devastated by the flood, and the outlook for the fall is very serious. Prompt work on the part of the city officials is forcing down the price of coolie rice to pre-flood prices, helped greatly in the immediate emergency following the flood.

Notice Given By the Trade Mark Bureau, Peking.

Notice is hereby given. By a former notice given by this Bureau the time limit prescribed in Article 4 of the Trade Mark Law was extended to the 30th day of June 1924. Such time limit will soon expire, but, in consequence of applications having been made by various merchants foreign and Chinese for a further extension of the period, this Bureau, acting for the benefit of the merchants, has in conformity with the rules of law petitioned the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce for a further extension of six months up to the 30th of December 1924. Sanction for such further extension has now been given by the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce and notice thereof has been given respectively through the said Ministry of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Custom Department, various public offices in the provinces, and all Industrial Commissioners for the information of merchants, foreign and Chinese. In addition thereto a general notice thereof is hereby given.

ОБ'ЯВЛЕНИЕ.

Постановлением Всероссийского Центального Исполнительного Комитета от 3 ноября 1921 года об'явлена амнистия лицам, участвовавшим в военных организациях Колчака, Деникина, Врангеля, Савинкова, Петлюры, Булак-Балаховича, Перемыкина и Юденича в качестве рядовых солдат путем обмана или насильственно втянутых в борьбу против Советской Власти.

Советская Россия боролась с вооруженным врагами рабочих и крестьян, неисчислимыми жертвами и лишениями трудящихся победила их в открытом бою. Во время тяжелой и упорной борьбы Советское Правительство знало, что тысячи русских трудящихся, путем обмана и насилия, втянуты в борьбу с Рабоче Крестьянской Властью. Этих обманутых людей водили в бой за чужое им дело и когда им пришлось очутиться на чужбине, их бросили на произвол судьбы. Они оказались сейчас выброшенными из родных сел, деревень и станиц Жестокая судьба разбросала их по различным уголкам мира.

Советская власть не может равнодушно относиться к судьбе этих рабочих и крестьян, которые, поняв свои заблуждения, стремятся вернуться на родину, чтобы здесь своим трудом искупить свои ошибки и помочь восстановлению народного хозяйства.

Постановлением Всероссийского Центрального Исполнительного Комитета от 9 июня 1924 года распространена амнистия 3 ноября 1921 года на всех рядовых солдат белых армий, находящихся на Дальнем Востоке, Монголии и Западном Китае.

Правом амнистии пользуются солдаты со званием не выше унтер офицера.

Прием заявлений от лиц на коих распространяется амнистия и желающих возвратиться в СССР производится в Канцелярии Представительства СССР в Шанхае ежедневно с 10 де 12 час. дня, кроме суббот и воскресений.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE ARTICLE

TEN YEARS SHOW GREAT ADVANCEMENT IN SHANGHAI

Port Forges Ahead In Spite Of Many Handicaps

TRADE DOUBLES

Now An "International" City In Every Respect

Shanghai had a remarkable growth in the decade ending in 1921 in spite of many adverse conditions, according to Volume II of the Decennial Reports, recently issued by the Chinese Maritime Customs. "The decade," says the report, "has been crowded with historical events, the first consequence of almost any of which might reasonably have been prophesied to be a disastrous diminution in the volume of trade in Shanghai.

"But, on the contrary, in spite of the Revolution and subsequent constant civil unrest, of the Great War and its diverse consequences, of fluctuations in exchange unparalleled in extent and rapidity, of the nation-wide Japanese boycott on two separate occasions, and of other occurrences minor only by comparison, the record of trade in Shanghai for the last ten years is one of enormous expansion and development."

The total gross value of trade at this port, including imports, original exports, transit traffic and native Customs trade (without opium) increased from Hk. Tls. 527,622,552 in 1912 to Hk. Tls. 1,044,891,149 in 1921. In spite of the loss of the opium trade, the total value of the trade of Shanghai all but doubled during the ten years under review.

TEN YEARS' HISTORY

"The history of the ten years from the point of view of commerce in Shanghai may be briefly summed up as follows: Steady development violently interrupted by the Great War; a new start from a lower level; local prosperity in spite of unforeseen dislocations arising during the war; a tremendous 'boom' in the first two years of peace; a slump in the closing years of the decade in common with a world-wide trade depression."

It impointed out that the expansion of trade in Shanghai might have been still greater than it actually has been, except for the marked tendency in recent years for the larger outports to obtain their foreign imports by direct importation from abroad, instead of by way of re-export from Shanghai. Combining the figures of Tientsin, Dairen and Hankow in a group together, in 1912, 64 per cent, in 1916, 71 percent, and in 1920 76 percent, of their total imports of foreign goods were obtained by direct import.

For the same years, the percentages of foreign imports into Shanghai re-exported have shown a marked decline: in 1912, 63 percent, in 1916, 58 percent, and in 1920, 47 percent, of the gross total import of foreign goods into Shanghai were re-exported.

RE-EXPORTS DECLINE

In 1912 the net total foreign imports (i.e. gross imports less re-exports) into Shanghai amounted to Hk. Tls. 73,067,301 in value. In 1920 they amounted to Hk. Tls. 224,632,688 and in 1921 to Hk. Tls. 217,285,647. This huge excess of foreign imports over re-exports may be accounted for partly by the rise in prices, partly by increase of local consumption, partly by the piling up in Shanghai of large stocks imported and impossible to dispose of in the present trade depression, and chiefly by the development of local industry, which has called for a heavy importation of machinery, equipment, and raw material, the corresponding exports reappearing as exports of local origin and not as re-exports; whereas in 1912, the total exports of local origin only amounted to Hk. Tls. 81,716,738, in 1921 they had increased to Hk. Tls. 275,954,482.

"Shanghai has thus reacted in the closest sympathy with the ebb and flow of that modern trans-national economy which has now spread itself over every corner of the globe; local occurrences have only produced fluctuations on the surface of the great waves which sweep over the whole world, trade depressions and influenza epidemics alike. Shanghai is now in every sense an 'international' city."

U. S. Cotton Market Hit By Southwest Heat Reports

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, June 20.—Uneasiness over high temperatures in the Southwest early in the week was relieved later by reports of cooler conditions and advices to the effect that no serious damage had occurred to the crop in Texas and Oklahoma, where the temperatures were highest. It was brought out in telegrams received by a local house from the hundred points in the South that all states but North Carolina show "wonderful improvement." No damage was indicated in Texas, although the reports stated that the plant there could not have stood the high temperatures much longer. A number of reports were received from sources in Texas considered reliable, to the effect that claims of weevils puncturing squares, and of grasshoppers, were absurd. On the other hand, as indicative of the conflicting character of news from that state, one prominent cotton man there declared emphatically that "it would be almost impossible for the crop to recover from what appears to be an irretrievably late start."

One house points out that on the whole, Texas prospects, while not very flattering, have shown considerable improvement in the past two weeks. The really critical time will come in July and August when the weather will largely determine the final yield of the Texas crop. The worst side of the Texas situation, perhaps, was set forth by the manager of the Agricultural Department of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, who laid much stress on weevil activity, which, he said, was of wide extent and that many squares are already punctured on the young cotton. East of the Mississippi, conditions have been favorable, judging from reports at hand this week. Farmers are reported to be working at high pressure in their efforts to make a good crop, and in Georgia, have purchased arsenate, with which to fight the weevil, at the rate of 100,000 pounds per county, which is a very high average.

Some Georgia mills are said to have considerably reduced their stocks of raw cotton, selling to local merchants who are shipping the staple to the Continent and Russia. A short time ago one of the Augusta, Ga., mills sold to a local dealer 2,000 bales, destined for Russia. Curtailment has been almost general, despatches say, and accumulation of surplus goods continues. May consumption, according to the census Bureau, was only 413,000 bales, against 620,000 a year ago, while for the ten months of the season, it was 4,991,000 against 5,661,000 a year ago. It is predicted that consumption this month will be ... was in May, one cotton goods merchant forecasting a June consumption of only 350,000 bales.

No improvement is noted in the cotton goods situation, other than occasional small spurts of activity, one excuse being that buyers of goods firmly expect new cotton to go lower. Therefore the large exports, which for the season are exceeding early estimates and are fully 900,000 bales ahead of the same time last year, are being offset by the more rapid falling-off in domestic mill curtailment than anticipated. It is claimed by some spinners that present prices obtainable for cloth entail a loss to mills of several cents a pound, and the argument is advanced that unless the new crop prospects should prove to be calamitous, the probabilities would seem to be that price advances on raw cotton will be of temporary duration. Although there is an idea in some quarters that mills are pretty low on cotton stocks, there has been little domestic spot interest shown during the week, and sales have diminished almost daily until the total at the end of the week is very small.

During the season 1923-24, up to May 1, 1924, Southern cooperative associations covering 12 states, handled a total of 836,173 bales of cotton compared with 584,600 last year.

Eight Railroaders Build Freight Car In 6 1-2 Hours

A record was set in rebuilding box cars in a recent contest held by the Delaware & Hudson Railway at Oneonta. The entire superstructure of a double-sheathed car of 60,000-pound capacity was rebuilt by eight men in six and one-half hours, or fifty-two man hours. The work included the installing of draft gears and couplers, as well as the assembling of cars on the track.

Such contests, conducted under the supervision of C. W. Ditmore master car builder of the company, are held for their educational value to the employes of the car department. The real purpose is not to establish records, but to enable the men to become more efficient.

The demonstration was carefully planned and every detail was checked over before the teams were allowed to start. The work to be done consisted in virtually rebuilding the entire car. The three teams were made up of one foreman and eight car repair men each, and were chosen from among the employes engaged in this class of work at the various stations. A team from Oneonta represented the Susquehanna Division, one from Colonie represented the Saratoga and Champlain Divisions, and a team from Carbondale, Pa., represented the Pennsylvania Division. The work was to be performed in a workmanlike manner, and it was the intention that the cars should be rebuilt under conditions similar to those found in actual repair work.

READY FOR QUICK WORK

A bill of material was compiled from the blueprints of the car, and every piece of material was made ready and conveniently placed near the steel underframe upon which it was to be assembled. The underframes had been dismantled from other cars of the same class, had been repaired and repainted, and were mounted on suitable supports above the track. All of the sills and heavy timbers had been machined, with the exception of the few holes necessary to bore in assembling, and were piled in the order in which they would ordinarily be applied to the underframes. The smaller pieces of lumber were also carefully checked over and placed in piles in the order in which they were to be used.

A rack, divided into suitable bins, was erected beside each underframe, and contained all of the various sizes of bolts, nuts, washers, &c., necessary to complete the work. Each pin in the rack was carefully marked to indicate the contents in order that no time might be lost in searching for material. The inside Winslow metal roof parts of each car were arranged in the order in which they would be needed. All of the castings and forgings required were provided and were piled with the other material.

The trucks were of the archbar type and were to be completely assembled and placed in their proper position under the cars. The truck wheels were mounted on the rails at each end of the underframe and all of the parts of the trucks were placed conveniently near the wheels. Thus the contestants were required to handle the material only when applying it to the car.

Rules governed the contest, and the work was subject to the inspection and approval of three inspectors and three judges. Piece-work rates were the basis of compensation, and the work of each team was inspected and checked by the piece-work inspectors, one of whom was assigned to each car. After the foreman of a team had announced that a car was completed the judges made a through examinaion of the work. The judges of the contest were G. E. Carson, district master car builder of the New York Central; A. Kipp, general car inspector of the New York, Ontario and Western Railway, and G. C. Height, general car inspector of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

PRIZES FOR WINNERS

The interest of the men was so great that no incentive was necessary for them to put forth their best efforts. But as an expression of the appreciation of the management of the company, cash awards in gold were offered as prizes, in addition to two silver cups. One of these, known as the Birkett Trophy, named in honor of the first car foreman of the Delaware and Hudson, was to be retained by the winning team until won by another team in some future contest, while the smaller cup, a replica of the Birkett trophy, was to be retained permanently by the winners.

The contest began at 8 o'clock and continued without interruption until noon. At 12:20 the work was resumed, and at 2:50 the team from Oneonta had completed the first car, the total elapsed time being six hours and thirty minutes. The next car was finished at 3:07 by the team from Colonie. The last team to finish completed the third car at 3:40, requiring seven hours and twenty minutes, or 58.66 man hours.

AMERICAN DYE MAKERS FEAR GERMAN RIVAL

Manufacturers, Now Independent, Disturbed By Invasion

New York, June 15.—American dye manufacturers are disturbed over reports that Friederich Bayer & Co. of Germany are planning a second invasion of the American field. During the war the Bayer company's plants in this country were seized by the Alien Property Custodian and sold to American interests. It was because of circumstances arising from this sale that the Chemical Foundation, Inc., was brought into being as a means of protecting the American industry from a return of seized dyes and chemical patents to German interests.

Dr. Karl Krekeler, director and pharmaceutical manager of Friederich Bayer & Co., arrived here with Dr. Otto Doermer, legal adviser, last week. He is at the Hotel Plaza. He said yesterday that he had heard rumors that his company planned to establish itself in America. "Such stories are untrue," he said. "We cannot plan any step at the present time because conditions in Germany are too bad economically."

"Does your company contemplate re-entering the American field when conditions in Germany have bettered?" he was asked.

"I cannot say as to that," replied the agent.

"Has your company arranged to take over the dyestuffs department of the Grasselli Chemical Company?" he was asked.

"There is nothing I can say at present except that my visit here is to look over things in general," was the answer.

RUMOR ABOUT COUP

The Grasselli Chemical Company of Cleveland early this month incorporated in Wilmington, Del., with a capitalizaton of $4,000,000, the Crasselli Dyestuffs Company. This fact, coupled with the arrival shortly after of the German agents and their reported visits to the offices in this city of the Grasselli Chemical Company, gave rise to rumors in the dye industry that the Bayer concern of Germany was about to buy out the Grasselli Chemical Company's dyestuffs department. It is known that in response to inquiry made by members of the American dye industry the Grasselli Chemical Company denied that it was contemplating the sale of its chemical interests.

A spokesman for American dye manufacturers said yesterday of the rumors relating to the Bayer company of Germany:

"The Bayer dye patents in this country were sold by the Alien Property Custodian to the Grasselli Chemical Company. In a letter to Chairman Fordney of the House Committee of Ways and Means, written July 25, 1919, F. S. Grasselli, the President, wrote, 'In its eighty years of existence the Grasselli Chemical Company has never had any affiliation with any German concern.

"It is the hope of American manufacturers in the industry that this circumstance will continue to be true. American manufacturers have known for some time that the Germans have been planning to re-establish their dye interests here. Under the charter granted the Chemical Foundation, Inc., patents are licensed to American manufacturers in a manner preventing the organisation of even an American monopoly. The Chemical Foundation had among its purposes the prevention of the restoration of the patents to their former German owners. The Bayer patents were disposed of by the Custodian before the Foundation came into being, and therefore they are not under the Foundation's control in any way.

"It is known that the Interessen Gemeinschaft, the German chemical and dye trust which held a monopoly in this country before the war, has been attempting lately to regain its world control. It has made ineffectual effort recently to get a foothold in Russia and has been casting around in other countries.

INDUSTRY INDEPENDENT

"The American dye industry has built itself up since the war to a point of independence. This independence assures the country of possession of explosives plants necessary for the national defense. Because of the German monopoly some years ago and the inability for some time of Americans to work out the patents held by Germans in this country, the explosives branch of the national defense was retarded when we entered the war.

"When President Wilson authorised the transactions revolving around the organisation of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., he had in mind the need of independence of German dye interests, and he was fully aware of the pernicious trade methods by which the German trust made it impossible for American manufacturers to compete with them.

"It is with these facts in mind that the American dye industry is disturbed by increasingly persistent stories that the Bayer Company of Germany is planning to buy into the American field."

The Shanghai Portland Cement Works, Ltd.
Manufacturers of the "ELEPHANT" Brand

Portland Cement.
The "ELEPHANT" Brand Cement is a cement of Strength and Fidelity. It is the product brought to perfection by modern machinery and expert scientific supervision. Its chemical quality, tensile and compression strength have not been excelled by any cement whether imported from Europe or manufactured in the Far East. The "ELEPHANT" Brand Cement has made a reputation and attained an eminence on the market in ten months time unattainable by another in a decade. Prove these facts yourselves from its users—the Shanghai Municipalities, Tramway Companies, Railways, Conservancy Works and other institutions and individuals. When you want a cement of quality for your construction, specify the "ELEPHANT" Brand.

Effect Of Reparations Settlement Upon U. S. Political Situation

FOUR years ago the Republican Party in the United States won a nine million plurality and elected President Harding to the White House on a platform of "isolation" from entanglement in the European political situation. Now, if we are to believe the news reports cabled out here from London and Paris, the Republicans have turned around and now base their campaign for a return to power in the present national election upon a platform which pledges the party to "complete" participation in the settlement of Europe's major problem—German Reparations.

The Washington Correspondent of the London Times was quoted in a French wireless report in the papers of last Sunday to the effect that "if the London Conference succeeds, the Republican Party, which has General Dawes as a candidate, might be successful."

A Reuters report published at the same time stated that "the main plank in the Reparations Settlement has already been adopted. It provides that the Reparations Commission, with the addition of American delegates, shall be the deciding authority regarding default. Such American delegates shall be appointed by unanimous vote of the Reparations Commission, or, in the event of failure to secure unanimity, shall be appointed by the International Court of Justice." Then a later dispatch from the same source quoted President Coolidge as "well satisfied with the progress of the negotiations, and in U. S. Government circles the suggestion that Mr. Owen Young should be chosen fiscal agent for the Reparations Commission, was generally welcomed."

Although little is yet known regarding the details of the settlement agreed upon, the French wireless report quotes Mr. Young, the American representative, as stating that the American conditions for participation in the German loan require that "the Dawes report must be freely accepted by Germany; all foreign intervention in Germany must be excluded; and assurance must be given that the revenues applied to the loans shall not be seized in any event."

To turn back now to the possible effects of American participation in the settlement of the Reparation Problem upon the domestic political situation in the United States in connection with the present national election, it is of interest to reprint the sections from the Republican Platform which have a bearing on this question. Under the heading of "Foreign Relations," the Platform reads:

"The Republican Party reaffirms its stand for agreement among the nations to prevent war and preserve peace. As an important step in this direction, we endorse the Permanent Court of International Justice and favor adherence of the United States to this tribunal as recommended by President Coolidge. This Government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations and to assume any obligation under the Covenant of the League. On this we stand.

"America's participation in world affairs under the administration of President Harding and President Coolidge has demonstrated the wisdom and prudence of the national judgment. A most impressive example of the capacity of the United States to serve the cause of world peace without political affiliations was shown in the effective and beneficent work of the Dawes Commission toward the solution of the perplexing question of German reparations."

Therefore the Republicans are pledged in double measure to assist in the settlement of the Reparations problem. They have it as one of the major planks in their platform, and, to clinch the bargain, they have placed General Dawes, the author of the "Dawes Plan," on the national ticket as candidate for Vice-President.

Turning now to the Democrats we do not find in their platform specific mention of the Reparations Problem but we do find recommendation for a national referendum on the subject of America's joining the League with reservations. The paragraph on this subject is as follows;

"The only hope of world peace and economic recovery lies in organized efforts of the sovereign nations cooperating to remove the causes of war and substitute law and order for violence. Under Democratic leadership a practical plan was derived under which fifty-four nations are now operating and which had for its fundamental purposes the free cooperation of all nations in the work of peace. The Government of the United States for the last four years has had no foreign policy and consequently it has delayed the restoration of the political and economic agencies of the world. It has curtailed our self-respect at home and injured our prestige abroad. It has curtailed our foreign markets and ruined our agricultural prices. It is of supreme importance that America be placed on the right side of the greatest moral question of all time. Therefore the Democratic Party renews its declaration of confidence in the idea of world peace, the League of Nations World Court of Justice as constituting the supreme effort of statesmanship and the religious conviction of our time to organize the world for peace. Furthermore the Democratic Party declares it to be the purpose of the next administration to do all in its power to secure for our country that moral leadership of the family of nations which in the providence of God has been so clearly marked out for it.

Thus again the American people have before them the subject of participation or cooperation in the settlement of the European problem. The Republican plan includes participation in the International Court of Justice at the Hague and cooperation with the Reparations Commission in accordance with the plan outlined by the Committee headed by General Dawes. The Democrats favor joining the League and cooperating all along the line and ask for a national vote on this question. If these declarations of the two major political parties in the United States mean anything—and assuredly they do—as an expression of the feelings of the American people, the experience of the last four years has brought a realisation in America that pure "isolation" does not pay and that the interests of nations and of all classes and industrial groups are fundamentally harmonious and interdependent.

The 'Red' Brand Of Diplomacy

A Recent declaration emanating from an authoritative quarter stated that some of the Great Powers were inclined to ignore the Bolshevik challenge implied in Moscow's avowed intention to elevate the former Russian Legation in Peking to the rank of an Embassy. Now comes the London Times with the timely admonition that, with reference to recent Sino-Russian diplomacy, the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps in Peking is likely to hold other than honorific significance and asks whether the Powers can acquiesce in the devolution of such responsible and delicate functions upon M. Karakhan, who, the paper asserts, is openly exciting Chinese hostility toward the Treaty Powers. The Times describes the recent events as "familiar Bolshevist methods."

The same element of duplicity which marks Soviet dealings with China has been the distinguishing characteristic of the negotiations in London. In the official communique published in London at the end of May reporting the progress of the Conference with the Bolshevist Delegation at the Foreign Office, the Soviet representatives were represented as attributing the present economic plight of Russia to the fact that "Russia had, during three years, but 19,000,000 men in the field in the Allied cause while all the other Allies together had put in 21,000,000. She had had to defend her existence for a further three years against a coalition of fourteen States. She had then passed through the ordeal of famine."

Of course, every impartial person who has any knowledge of the question knows that the economic collapse of Russia—naturally one of the richest countries in the world—is primarily due to the policy of nationalization introduced by her Communist Government, that not one of the "Fourteen States" ever attacked Russia, but one or two of them tried—all too half-heartedly—to help loyal Russians to deliver their country from the usurpers, and that the dire disaster of the famine was only made possible by the policy of the Bolshevist Government toward the peasantry and the breakdown of transport under their rule. It may be worth while, however, to point out that, according to information obtained by Major-General Sir Alfred Knox from the Chief of the Mobilisation Department at Petrograd on October 23, 1917, the Russian calls on man-power during the war amounted to 15,100,000 and not 19,000,000. Russia's effort in man-power was less than ten per cent. of the population, while France placed in the field about 16 per cent. of her population.

One who stood near and spoke to Major-General Knox one day in a Petrograd street when the Bolshevists made their first military display adds a few interesting facts to the very apt remarks from the Major General, from which it appears that it was not exactly an exhibition of war weariness, although the first misleading excuse of the Bolshevists for putting an end to Russia's part in the war was that of exhaustion and inability to fight any more. They then formed a big army which fought furiously for three years, not in self-defence against "Fourteen States," as they absurdly pretend, but against their own Russians, who remained true to the Allied cause, while the Allies had to defend themselves against Bolshevist cooperation with the Germans. That is the real truth of the matter. It is well that General Knox has corrected the Bolshevist exaggeration of Russia having put 19,000,000 into the field, but it was quite unnecessary for the Soviet delegates to bring that forward, as it has nothing to do with the object of the Conference.

In the course of the negotiations, the delegates on both sides have protested against the persons "who wish the conference to fail," and a London correspondent points out that those persons are doing their fellow-countrymen a very poor service, for if the Soviet delegates go home without an agreement, there will be no settlement of British claims. But fair comment ought not to harm the Conference, and the Soviet delegation have no reason to complain of honest British criticism when the Lord Chancellor of England says, as reported in the Press, that the abuse directed against the British Government from Moscow does not matter. Another noticeable feature in the discussion at the Foreign Office is the almost touching interchange of compliments, which obscures the important fact that the Bolshevists, and no one else, are to blame for there being any claims at all.

The Soviet people are very clever in shifting responsibility on to the shoulders of others, and they have all along tried to convince us that Russia's miserable plight is due to the war and the Allies. The facts, however, tell a different tale. The war did not cripple Russia. That was done by the Bolshevists. It is no paradox to say that the war was economically beneficial. There was a pre-war law restricting the emission of paper roubles to 60 per cent. gold guarantee in the Imperial Treasury, and to a full guarantee in gold over the issue of 600 millions, and there was never sufficient roubles in circulation to meet properly the growing needs of the vast population. The purchasing power of the peasantry was precarious. But at the time of the war 6½ milliards of paper were issued by the Imperial Government in two years and seven months, and 16½ milliards by the Provisional Government in eight months. A considerable amount of money was accumulated amongst the peasantry, who received high prices for their produce, and the currency was not unduly depreciated until after the Bolshevist revolution, which rendered it virtually valueless. With this increased amount of money, which they held, the peasants would have been able after the war to increase their agricultural inventory and improve their conditions in general. Similar advantages accrued to Russian industry, which had always been very backward and inadequate. The war stimulated it where such stimulus was badly wanted. It forced the Government to provide facilities, and assist development. New industries were created and existing ones extended. For instance, the output of Russian coal was doubled and trebled, and the supply of Central Asian cotton was increased from a third to more than half of the country's requirements. Russia was in a position to benefit by these effects of the war, whereas England was not. In England the increase of industrial occupation during the war led to subsequent unemployment, and the enormous stocks of material and goods then produced have not yet been all absorbed. In Russia the factories, mills, new plant, etc., could have been easily adapted to satisfy the increasing demands of the population. It would not have been necessary to close down any of the factories or to discharge the workmen. The increase would not have been in excess of the country's demands. Russia's prosperity was not ruined by participation in the common cause of the Allies, but deliberately destroyed by the Bolshevists. Therefore the latter are not justified in craving indulgence and financial sacrifices on the part of Great Britain or any other nation.

Plight Of Russian Children

THE plight of the small Russian child beggars in Shanghai has started a wave of public sympathy and indignation, with the result that prominent persons who have been actively identified with Russian relief and repatriation efforts for some time past now are desirous of getting in touch with other persons who might be interested in helping these children.

The Russian Orthodox Confraternity maintains a school, both for destitute children and for adults, at 721 Avenue Foch, but the funds of the Confraternity have been well-nigh depleted by its work, as was reported in these columns about two weeks ago. The Confraternity, however, is in a position to maintain a child for $10 a month, and it is the belief of a number of people that much real good would be accomplished by removing the child beggars from the streets and placing them in the school. The spectacle of a six-year old child selling tawdry little bits of odds and ends which nobody wants outside the luxurious cafes and hotels here from an early hour in the evening until 3 a.m. is not an edifying one in this super-effete city of the East. However, the case of each child will have to be traced to its source, so that when the present groups of child beggars are removed there will not be more youngsters foisted upon the city by parents either incapable of work or otherwise unable to maintain themselves except through this doubtful medium of the but slightly-disguised begging activities of their children.

THE TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

Listen, young man! The cleverest man in the world is the man that tells the truth, and tells it all the time, not occasionally.

Sometimes you can profit by a lie, but it is like dodging bullets; you never know when you are going to get hurt.

Lying is a game. Sometimes it is a very exciting game, but it is essentially gambling. And gambling, any sort of gambling, is not business.

The fundamental laws of business are just as accurate and as well established as the principles of geometry.

It is hard to see this, for our visual range is limited. Most of us can see the crooked dollar coming today, but not the ten straight dollars it is going to lose us tomorrow.

Real business success is cumulative. It grows like a snowball. And the one thing that makes it keep us growing, even while we sleep, is our persistent truthfulness and dependableness.

If you put an advertisement in the paper announcing goods worth five dollars for sale at two dollars, and if the people come and buy, and find out the stuff is not worth ten cents, you may make a one day's gain, but you have alienated a lot of indignant customers and have started to saw away the posts that sustain your reputation.

If you have a store rented for a week only and purpose to conduct a sacrifice sale of goods that will make everybody disgusted who buys them, then perhaps you may lie with a high hand and a stretched-out arm.

But if you are in the town to stay, and want regular, returning, increasing, satisfied, and friendly customers, it will pay you to stick to the old-fashioned truth.

Exaggeration is lying. It does not take long for the people in the community to get the habit of discounting twenty-five percent of all you say.

If you continually overstate and vociferate you must keep on getting louder, until you soon become incoherent.

But if you habitually state only what is soberly, honestly true, by and by everything you say will be away above par.

A man's repute for truthfulness is as much a part of his capital as are his store and stock; so much so that he can raise money on it.

As civilisation progresses, business becomes more and more an affair of credit, of trust. The very foundation of big business is trustworthiness. Therefore, if you are ever going to get beyond the peanut-stand and push-cart stage of merchandise you must establish a basis of dependableness.

There is not one thing in this world, young man, that can be of as much value to you as building up a reputation such that men will say, "your word is as good as your bond."

It is well to be clever and keen and Johnny-on-the-spot, it is well to look out for number one and to know a good bargain, but best of all is to have the world say of you:

"Whatever that man says can absolutely be relied upon."

Did Jupiter Or An Explosion Make The Asteroids?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,

"It will be, I am sure, of interest to all readers, as it will be to the writer, to know the theories concerning the existence of so many asteriods between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Are they believed to have been created in the same manner as the planets, or are they the result of some cataclysm which destroyed a large planet at some early period of its existence? Their alleged irregular shapes might indicate that.—A. J. M., Chicago."

I do not think that the theories about the asteriods can be more succinctly and clearly summed up than in the following words of Professor C. A. Young, who, while always exact in his knowledge, and scientific in his statements, was never unmindful of the layman's point of view. He wrote in his "Manual of Astronomy," as revised some ten years ago, and no essential change is required now:

"Origin—As to this we can only speculate. It is hardly possible to doubt that this swarm of little rocks in some way represents a single planet of the terrestrial group.

"A generally accepted view is that the material, which, according to the nebular hypothesis, once formed a ring or rings like those of Saturn, either continuous or of separate pieces—matter which ought to have collected to make a single planet—has failed to be so concentrated; and the failure is ascribed to the perturbations produced by its neighbor, the giant planet Jupiter, whose powerful attraction is supposed to have disintegrated the ring, or at least prevented the union of the separate parts, and thus stopped the development of a normal planet."

"Another view is that the asteriods may be fragments of an exploded planet. If so, there must have been not one but many explosions; first of the original and then of the separate pieces in different portions of their orbits. It is demonstrable that no single explosion could account for the present tangle of orbits."

b c
Original Ring of Nebulous particles
JUPITER PREVENTING THE FORMATION OF A PLANET
At "A" the particles are hastened, at "C" they are held back by Jupiter's pull.

It may be well to suggest, in outline, answers to one or two questions which may arise in the mind of the reader. First, he may ask how the attraction of Jupiter could prevent the union of the parts, or particles, of the original ring into a single planet. Look at the diagram, which shows Jupiter and the part nearest to him of the original ring of matter from which the asteroids are supposed to have been found. Observe that the particles constituting the ring are all together revolving around the sun in the direction indicated. Jupiter, too, is revolving around the sun, but much more slowly, owing to his greater distance.

As the particles pass Jupiter the effect of his attraction upon them indicated by arrows, increases as they get nearer. The velocity of the particles around "a" is increased by Jupiter's pull, and consequently they move farther away from the sun, taking up a larger orbit.

On the contrary, the particles around "c" have their velocity slowed by the backward pull of Jupiter, and accordingly they drop nearer to the sun, and take up a smaller orbit. Jupiter's attraction upon the particles is greatest at "b," but there it tends neither to increase nor decrease their velocity.

The distance between Jupiter and the ring is always too great to permit Jupiter to do more than vary the velocity of the particles; he cannot take them away from the sun's control, but by his varying action upon their movements he prevents them from regularly condensing under the effects of their mutual gravitation and thus arranging themselves into a single great planet.

Instead, many centers of condensation are created over considerable range of distance from the sun, and these centers become the asteroids.

The other theory is inconsistent with this, inasmuch as it assumes that a single large planet was formed, but, after having become a completed world blew up. This was the original theory of Olbers, one of the first discoverers of asteroids. It was afterwards abandoned because mathematical considerations showed that the fragments of an exploded planet would never have traveled in the orbits now pursued by the hundreds of asteriods.

Professor Young regarded this objection as disposed of by assuming that after the first explosion the pieces themselves exploded again and again, thus providing for the existence of a complicated system of orbits.

No reason is known why a planet should explode, but if it had the exploding habit it might keep on until it reduced itself to pieces too small to be troubled with internal dissensions. Several of the asteroids almost certainly have very irregular outlines, so that, as Professor Young suggested, they may be better called big rocks than little planets.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

Bathing Suits Are an Essential of Children's Wardrobes Whether or Not They Go to Lake or Seashore

A Summer bathing suit has come to be an essential in every child's summer wardrobe whether or not the child gets within a hundred miles of a sea or lake bathing beach. There are always clear streams or pools large enough for a child to wade in, and even a garden fountain and a few feet of rubber garden hose seem to provide sufficient excuse for a child nowadays to sport a bathing suit.

One busy mother of several young children has solved the dress problem for her children, to her own satisfaction at least, by dressing her children in bathing suits every day and all day when they are at their summer home in the country. For a very few afternoon occasions they are put into regulation wash suits and underclothes. For the rest a one-piece bathing suit is put on fresh every morning. Laundering them consists simply of washing them and hanging them up in the sun to dry.

There is very little difference between some of the little folks' bathing suits seen in America nowadays and little "combinations" of the sort that most all little French boys wear for play all summer. They are sleeveless and very shortlegged, often of wool jersey, when they are quite frequently worn without any under things at all.

The sketch shows a bit of a bathing suit of red jersey cloth trimmed with white worsted embroidery. You may—or may not—wish to have your own bathing costume inconspicuous, but a real purpose is served when the child's bathing suit is bright and distinctive. For the nurse or mother who must keep her eye on children on the beach, see that they have not gone too far out or are not wading in too deep water, there is advantage certainly in having a child clad in a bathing suit sufficiently distinctive and bright enough to be seen quickly and distinctly.

This summer there seems to be some sort of decorative note on almost all the otherwise plain jersey suits. If you wish to be economical you might get one of the plain jersey suits and embellish it with embroidered animals of some sort. Or you might make small cut-outs from table oil cloth and sew them into position. Table oil cloth is used, you know, quite a bit to decorate even adult bathing suits.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

SOMETHING NEW

There are new hats containing pockets on the side of the crown where cigarettes are held. The gold tips of the cigarettes just show above the little pocket and thus form part of the decoration of the hat. A handkerchief slipped into a bit of a pocket also provides part of the trimming.

DO YOU KNOW THE DIFFERENCE—

Between onions and their next of kin?

In many parts of this country we speak of Spanish onions and Bermuda onions — signifying thereby specially large, mild-flavored onions desirable when onions are wanted to be eaten raw. Mexican onions, Italian onions and Californian onions are also large and often as mild and desirable as those from Bermuda or Spain.

The scallion was originally the onion of Ascalon in Palestine. The name is applied to the shallot or to the onion or leek when grown so close together as not to form a large bulb. It is milder than the onion and is preferred by many cooks for cooking and pickling. It is some-times called a cibol.

The garlic is the strongest flavored of all the onion family. It is a native of Central Asia and seems always to be better liked by natives of warm countries than Northerners. The leek, which is mild in flavor, was made popular in Rome by Nero and has been so much liked in Wales that it has been taken as the national badge of Welshmen.

STUDEBAKER
Dependable 6-Cylinder Motor Cars

WOULD the springs on your car withstand a pressure of 160 to 180 pounds per inch without breaking? Springs on Studebaker motor cars must measure up to such a mark before they leave the factory.
Careful selection of alloy steels; the practice of oil tempering all Studebaker springs; years of spring-making experience which began long before the automobile was known—these factors and the rigid tests Studebaker springs receive—will explain why so few Studebaker springs ever break.
Based on factory records for 1923, replacement of springs on all Studebaker cars in operation that year amounted to less than 1 per cent!
Would your springs stand this?

Real Dirt Farmer Is Lawmaker.

C. M. Head, member of the Georgia Legislature, finds ample time to work his big farm near Marietta. He is not one of the new-fangled managing farmers, but tills the soil himself.

Russian Journals Show Increase Since Revolt

Moscow.—The Moscow papers are almost entirely given over to a discussion of the scope and aims of the Soviet press.

There are now more newspapers in Russia than there were in 1914. In that year there were 316 city papers and 131 country papers, with 2,708,500 subscribers. Now there are 330 city and 168 country papers. The circulation is slightly smaller, all the Soviet papers having 2,520,570 readers.

Naturally the new journalism in Russia is very different from the old. One interesting result of Soviet policy toward the minor nationalities of the Union has been the development of a nationalist non-Russian press. Altogether there are now 108 papers published in the territory of the Union in languages other than Russian, and these papers have 238,000 readers—a considerable number if one considers the general illiteracy which prevails among the oriental races of the Union. The policy of the Tsar's Government was to stifle the national consciousness of the non-Russian peoples; the policy of the Soviet Government is to give them wide cultural autonomy, expressed in such measure as the use of the vernacular languages in the schools, courts, and in the transaction of public business generally.

The nationalist press has developed rapidly under these conditions, and is attracting more readers than the Russian papers where the Russians are in a minority. It is reported that only in the Ukraine, in the Crimea and in the Kirghiz Republic is the Russian press holding its own against the competition of the native papers, and in these regions also a development of the non-Russian papers is noticeable. Most governments would look on such a development as an object of alarm and attempt to repress it, but the Soviet Government declares that it regards the success of the non-Russian press as a proof of the success of its policy of nationalist toleration.

A peasant press, designed especially for the villages, has also sprung up since the Revolution, and a workers' press has developed on a much larger scale. Besides the large metropolitan papers which are rather serious and heavy in their contents, a number of smaller papers, written in simpler language, with an abundance of shorter items have commenced publication both in Moscow and in the provinces.

Since the Revolution a new type of journalist has grown up the "rabkor," or workers' correspondent. The rabkor is a factory, railroad division or Government institution whose duty it is to report the daily life of the workers and to mete out praise and blame, criticism and suggestions as the occasion may require. There are now 15,000 of these rabkors in all parts of the Soviet Union and they are regarded as a valuable medium of connection between the Government and the workers.

A new feature in Russian journalism is the "wall paper," a weekly or monthly journal written by hand and pasted up on the walls of a factory. This is also designed to give the workers an organ of self-expression.
